

"Unsetting Genealogies of Haitian Revolutionary History"

This lecture weaves the genealogies of Michel-Rolph Trouillot's history of the Haitian Revolution, Silencing the Past (1977), into a much longer history of Haitian thought. This new reading is a necessary first step in creating a decolonial intellectual history of Haiti.

Lecture by Marlene Daut

Professor of African Diaspora Studies, University of Virginia.

Time and Venue:

Zoom lecture, Fri October 23, at 3:30pm.

Contact Allison Smythe, smythea@missouri.edu , the week of the talk for a link to participate.

Sponsors

Afro-Romance Institute, Kinder Institute for Constitutional Democracy, Missouri Humanities Council

